On Wednesday 2 November We Went to London we left on an early start at 7:15 So a lot of people asleep, snoring so this is boring.

When we got to stop for a break at 10:25 and we ate flapjacks.

Later we got there at 12:50 we ate lunch. Everyone stopped moaning.

Later we looked at the Secret of the home and played the first ever ping pong game on a computer which is next to the first phone and toilet.

After a while we looked at materials.

The games and eletric was fun but I liked clocks the best and bored on the way back (tired, bored, happy).

L.O: Can I effectively recount a personal experience?

A few months ago, a adventure was set for my family to get somewhere far from my home to take a visit to my nan's place. It was a very long trip, It felt like it took half of the day, but luckily it was only two or three hours long.

After such a long trip, we finally arrived. Once we stopped, we had all of the things in the back that had to be carried out and taking inside of the house and it was boring. So we got out of the car, took out all of the bags and carried them into the house.

Soon after carrying the bags inside we got to relax in there living room, Where they have a expanding table with chairs, two chairs that rock forwards and backwards, a TV with a shelf full of dvds on it and a small sofa.

While I was destracked in the living room, outside was my family setting up a tent. As soon as I found out, I asked if I could help. Setting the tent up, we could the bright, shining sun. I didn't do much but I was ok with it.

Next day, I woke up in the house because the tent was broken. I walked around the house, rushed to the kitchen and rushed my breakfast. After breakfast, we planed to go to this amazing park with lots of rides.

After all of the exstremes fun we had it was time to go home. when we got all of the things back in the car ready, It was time to go. we waved goodbye and drived back home.

L.O. Can I plan an effective recount of a personal experience?

When we arrived at school we got registered and got on the coach. At the time, we were feeling really excited. Once everyone got on the coach we started moving and everyone settled down. Then we stopped for a break because was hungry.

After the long journey, we finally arrived at the Science Museum. I was really pleased to get there and eat my lunch because I was hungry.

The first area we visited was called the secret life of the home. It was very interesting. Then moved upstairs to the Space room. Towering above the Space gallery, we could see the impressive glass bridge.

Next we visited the meterials exhibition there was alot information about materials and there uses.

We had to walk around the museum quite quickly, so we could see as much as possible. My favourite part so far was the energy hall.

Soon we left the materials hall and arrived at the electricity gallery- fuelling your future.

The time passed by quickly and it was soon time to head back to the coach and set off for home. On the way home, there was a funny guided tour by Mr Whalen and some games.

On Wednesday 2nd of November, everyone woke up really early and started to get ready for school. We all filled into the Coach and settled down for a long road trip. As we got on the Coach I presumed that everyone was really excited due to the amount of noise.

When we arrived in London miss mConnel and miss lewis tried to commentate but they weren't very good; Despite the bad Commentary I thought that the coach Journey was funny.

Immediately after we got to the science we went for lunch in the basement Studio. After we were all full (excluding James: ref: Holt Hall) We walked to a Section of the Museum Called "The Secret life of the home"; which held objects such as toilets and old games Consoles.

As soon as we had finished that we had a quick scout around the "Exploring space" Section before we went to fabrics. After we left the minx fur behind we went up one floor to 'energy and electricity.' We were given electricshocks and tried to restore electricity in a blackout.

we heard some good buskers on the way back to the coach; one was playing 'Hallelujah' and the other was playing a pop song.

on the way back we all tried to sleep but the road was far to bumpy.

LO: Can I effectively recount a personal experience?

Wensum Junior school was searching for an adventure and on Wednesday 2nd November Wensum set out to London. Starting at 6:45, children and adults were almost asleep but still went out to have some fun! It was a long day ahead and lots of children were looking forward to the experience.

Firstly, we excititly went on coach 4. all prepared, and got into our seats and put on our seatbelts ready for the journey. Once we had been in the coach for two hours, we urgently got of the coach at a station to go to the toilet and have a snack and drink. When we left, we quickly stepped back on the coach, ready to finish the journey and arrive. Once we arrived, we split up into our groups and excitilly walked the 5 minute walk to the muesum. As soon as we got at the muesum, we had lunch. I was so glad to have lunch as I was hungry.

After lunch, we went to the secret life of the home and we noticed how much home objects have changed. Straight after that, we went to look at all the fabrics. I found it a bit boring. As soon as we finished looking at the fabrics, we happily walked across an amazing bridge which was towering above the museum and was impressive as it was made of glass and was see through.

Once we walked past the bridge, we enthusastickly went into a WWI room. We thought it would be dark around the room and gloomy but it wasn't and we also thought it would be smoky. As soon as we left, we went into a quiz room. There were four different things and we had to try and guess what the objects were. I was a little disapointed about the WWI room but the quiz room was so fun.

The last thing we did was this electricity thing. It was where we had to put our hand through some bars and we got an electric shock! In the same room there.

was a game where there was a blackout in London and we had to help three different people. As soon as we walked out the room, we reluctantly went back on the coach. I was sitting next to Izzy. I was puzzeld when they told us that we were leaving because it only felt like half an hour so I asked and she said we were there for three hours! It Unbelievable! Even though I didn't want to leave I had a fun time. My favourite bit was the electric shock thing and the blackout game.

Everybody arrived very late at school but everybody knew it was worth it. Most of the children left with happy faces and was telling all of the amazing things which happend! I was so relieved when I got some chips because I was so hungry!

On Wednesday 2nd November, Wensum Junior School set out on an amazing adventure to the busy streets of London. An early start for everybody involved and a long day ahead. Everybody arrived at school looking very tired but excited for a day in London, especially the people who had never been to London before.

Early that morning, we all got on our coach (3 and 4) and found a seat. The time we left was around 7:15am which was very early. On the way there, I was a bit hungry until we got to the service station. When we got back on the coach, it was a bit noisy because everyone was singing loudly.

Hours later, we got off the coach, walked along the busy streets of London and soon arrived at the humongouse Science museum. Luckily, the walk was only 5 minuets but it was still ~~boring~~. As soon as we got into the marvellouse museum, we had some lunch (which everybody was glad about. Everybody was ~~glad~~ excited for the day and to see and find out some new Interesting facts.

Not long after, our group went to go and have a look at the secret life of the home gallery. In that gallery, there was alot of old cleaning tools on display. About 30 minuets after, we all went to the energy hall and saw lots of huge pumps. Towering above the energy hall, we could all see the impresive, glass bridge which we all walked across with excitment. Also there was a crazy looking ring that looked like a giant hamsta wheel. Some people felt a bit scared of the glass bridge when we got told the wires where holding it.

Just before we left, we went to an electricity gallery which was full of exciting things. Lots of people touched a giant pole that gave us an electric shock. There was also lots of games to play. Not long after, we got back on our coach and mr Whalen and Miss Richardson gave us a guided tour of London!! !! !!

Coach 3 which was my coach arrived at around 7:45pm after a very long day on the trip. Most People were ~~tired and~~ couldn't wait to go to bed. Overall, I think going to London was the best school trip

L.O. I can effectivly reaccount a personal experiance.

On Wednesday 2nd November Wensum junior School set out on exciting adventure to London. An early start for anyone involved in the long day ahead. Everyone arcived at School looking forward to the experiance waiting to be told.

First we got on the coach and sat in our seats. On the coach everyone were really excited, and tired. Next we had a little break and Something to eat and drink. Then we got back on the bus. I enjoyed writing and drawing in my book because it was very fun!

At 12 o'clock we walked across the road to the Science mueseum, and had lunch. After lunch we went to the energy hall and saw lots of interesting things. I liked seeing the old computers. We were all very excited for lunch because we were really hungary.

After the energy hall, we went to the challenge of materials. We had to guess what materials lead to what objects. Towering above us was the amazing glass bridge. It was simply amazing! I liked feeling the materials because I like the feel of them.

Me and Gracie then went to the textiles section and felt the different materials. My favorite was the bricks, because it's very rough. I also liked the astroturg because it felt bristly.

Lastly, we went back on the coach and I sat next to Gracie. We had lots of fun and played games. Our favorite was 21. We had a quick break and some food. We finally got back to school at about 8.00 and were very tired.

I was happy when I got into bed but I now have a head full of happy memories with my friends.

At 6:45 on wednesday 2nd November everyone from wensum junior School was ready for their trip. Five coaches left the school at 7:15 and all of them were full of excited children.

the coach journey was very long. I was sitting on my own but Sophie, Emily and Ellie were sitting near me so we could talk. Around halfway, we stopped and I went to sit next to Ellie. we arrived in the end but not before we got stuck in a traffic jam coming into London. then there was a short walk to the museum. Although the trip was 4-5 hours, I wasn't too bored because I had lots of people to talk and play with.

When we arrived at the science museum, we went to the picnic area in the basement to eat lunch. Then we went briefly through the space area. After the space area, everyone went to the energy hall to have a look at how people used to make energy. Above us, out of reach, was a great white wheel with white dashes circulating around inside it. I liked the the white wheel that looked like a rollercoaster because there were dashes inside it that went round and round and it was interesting to look at. It was brilliant.

After we'd finished in the energy hall we went up to the first floor to look at materials and the agriculture. Next we went up to the second floor because everyone wanted to go across the glass bridge. we also got to touch a piece of metal that gave you an electric shock. Finally I played a game about a blackout with sophie and then we had to go. the glass bridge made me a little nervous because people were making it wobble. I also liked playing the game with sophie. She is great fun to play with. we exited the museum, walked down the road and got on the coach.

When we were on the coach I sat next to Tid. Mr Wakand and Miss Richardson gave us a tour around London. We also got small activities to do. We got back to school quite late and everyone was ~~tired~~ very tired. I enjoyed the school trip and the activities were fun and stopped us becoming bored.

Everyone enjoyed the school trip although we had an early start and a late night but it was worth it.

When we went into the impressive Secret Life of the home, me and Kendall walked around pressing all of the ruby red buttons and looking at all of the delicate objects. We headed to a few more areas and then it was time to go.

I felt scared when I went on the glass bridge because people kept jumping up and down and it kept wobbering. It was basically scary!

On the coach on the way back I sat next to maxwell. Mr Whalen + Mrs Richardson was entertaining us. Me, Natalia, holly and maxwell played hangman + 21. we got back at 8:00pM

I felt bored as it took 5 hours to get back.

About seven months ago my nanny took me and my sister to gresham hall. We went in the car and I loved breathing in the fresh country air! I felt so excited to see what they would have there because I love the victorian era. When we arrived I was quite hot because it was a lovely Summers day. We registered in and then made our way inside. We went into the giftshop and I got some sweets! I was also shocked to see how beautiful the Victorian building and garden was!

first we went into a historical animal room and we felt loads of different animal skin! There was also a huge dinosaur egg that I sat in. Then we went into a cool cobbled victorian village and went into a old shop. I loved seeing all the victorian products. Then we went into a room and we saw some victorian circus travelling carts and they where red and gold and beautiful!

Lastly we went into the gardens and on the wall there where carvings of real victorian names that where acually carved in the victorian era. I was shocked that the carvings where so clear. Then we got into the car and drove home. It was such an amazing day!

On Wednesday 2nd November, Wensum Junior School took part in an extraordinary trip to London. We all had a very long day but we would all do it again in a heartbeat!

First, we got on the coach and sat in our seats. On the coach, everybody was really excited and tired. We got off to have a little snack. We walked to the Welcome Break and had a drink. On the bus, I really enjoyed colouring with Ella because it was really calm and fun.

At 12 o'clock, we got to the Science Museum and had lunch. After lunch, we went to the energy hall and saw lots of interesting things. I liked seeing the old computers. We were all very exited about lunch because we were all very hungry!

I loved the textiles because I thought they were cool.

Lastly, we went back on the coach and I got to sit next to Kendel. We had lots of fun and played games with Thomas, Tom, Marshall and Kleo. We had a ~~g~~ quick brake and then got back on the coach. Finally, we got back to school. It was a very long day. It was the best trip ever!

LQ: can I electively recount a personal experience?

I woke up at 5:30 ish, had porridge, golden syrup, went to school. The horrible wait for the coach began. When the coach eventually arrived, I had bouncing bunnies in my tummy. Surprise, surprise, I felt sick. When I sat at the front, I had a nice view, I saw number 16 Victoria bus.

It was only a short walk from the coach to the Science museum- thankfully! Although it was a very long journey (it felt like all my life was on the coach) I was excited to finally arrive and get off the bus! When got there we had lunch after we eat lunch we went to the secret life the home. Amazing – or as the French would say incroyable. I really enjoyed the telephone information bit- it was really cool- it was like they were really talking to me.

On the ground floor we went to the space room, this was my favourite. Even though I am not the biggest space fan but I liked the world model. When I first saw the world model, I thought that I was seeing things. But I wasn't. I loved it!

When we went on the glass bridge, it was really scary. Some people were jumping on it! After that we went to the challenge of materials room, which yet again I thought was awesome!

Sadly, it soon was time to go home. Unfortunately, we had to get back on the coach, however, the fun didn't stop there! We had a guided tour. I ran downer the hall to the toilet.

Firstly, we excitedly went on coach 4 and put on are seatbelts read for the journey ahead. It was very boring then we had a pit stop. We finally arrived at the Science Museum at midday!

When we got there we had lunch, after that we visited the secret life of homes- I really enjoyed it there.

Then we went quietly to the space room, I walked around and sat down to listen to an audio/TV about missile launching.

Towering over us, I saw the dodgy glass bridge. Then we were allowed to say hi from above and then we walked across it and took a selfie and look at materials.

Quickly and tiredly we walked to the electricity room. I got an electric shock. I found the electric room a bit boring.

We got back on the coach, Mr Whalen and Ms Richardson are very good tour guides. Then we had food at the pit stop. Last but not least I played dares with my friends!
