Norwich

■ Year Four at Wensum Junior School are hard at work on a First World War project called The Fiercest Light. The project was co-commissioned by 14-18 NOW: WW1 Centenary Art Commissions, Norfolk & Norwich Festival and Writers' Centre Norwich. On Tuesday, Year Four spent the day with Historian Neil Storey, learning about 'our lads' in the Heigham area of Norwich, then heading to the 'trenches' on the school field to perfect their grenade throwing. The class headed to the Imperial War Museum yesterday to immerse themselves in everything First World War. Next Wednesday a poet from the Writer's Centre and a local singer/songwriter will be working with the children to produce a music video around the project which will be showcased at Cinema City in November.

Teachers and pupils go dotty for a good cause

A Spotacular show has been staged at Cringleford CE VA Primary School in aid of BBC Children in Need.

The Norwich school was involved with the fundraising campaign The Big Spotacular, encouraging children and teachers to dress up in spots, sell spotty cakes and goods, and take part in spotty-themed challenges.

Now the school plans to hold a variety of other fundraising activities ahead of Appeal Night on November 18.

Headteacher Neil Henery said: "We had great fun today turning Cringleford Primary CE VA School spotty! The pupils are very excited about The Big Lloyds Bank Spotacular and developing spotty fundraising ideas for BBC Children in Need." Lloyds Bank is encouraging schools to join the fun by claiming their free Spotacular kit, containing fundraising ideas, resources, and other spotty delights.

Fans of Pudsey Bear will also be pleased to hear that the character will be going on tour.

Pudsey will be travelling the length of the country as part of the Spotacular Pudsey UK Roadshow, to celebrate with some of the schools participating in the campaign.

Stuart Beaver, director of partnership and community programs at Lloyds Banking Group said the partnership with BBC Children in Need continues to produce positive results, in particular with the help of local schools across the country.

"The partnership continues to form an important part of the Group's Helping Britain Plan, with education one of the pillars in helping to address the big issues facing the people and communities of today."

"Handing the fundraising over to the children was a success last year, and I can't see how Spotacular their fundraising activity is this year."

Lord Mayor opens charity shop's antiques department

Norwich

A new charity shop antiques department has been officially opened by the Lord Mayor of Norwich, Marion Maxwell.

Mrs Maxwell opened the new department, which is located in the basement of the PACT charity shop, in Dove Street.

The new department will sell small and medium items of antique and collectable furniture and pictures.

All of the items on sale have been donated by PACT supporters to help save the lives of unwanted and abused animals.

This winter the PACT team is expecting a large influx of wildlife needing their help.

Already they have more than 60 hedgehogs in their care, and are expecting about another 100 to join them.
